FOREWARD

Graduate study programs in adult-continuing education are reaching greater milestones each year. In 1971, a total of 44 universities offered adult education as a graduate degree program, a jump of 20 in three years. The growth of graduate programs in adult education is expressive of the need for leaders in this field. The demand will not lessen; evidence of an expanding need can be seen in the following facts:

a) Seventy million persons over 16 years of age have less than a high school diploma.

b) Unemployment hovers between 5% and 6%.

c) Problems of health and human relations are accelerating.

d) Crime in our cities is on the rampage.

e) Environmental illiteracy is widespread.

f) Welfare rolls are lengthening, at psychological cost to the recipient and great financial cost to the taxpayer.

To accommodate this need, an increasing number of educators are furthering their professionalism through post-baccalaureate work. In order to meet their request for an accessible list of literature in this field, a bibliography of those works available at Northern Illinois University has been compiled.

The collection in Northern Illinois University's Swen Parson Library is one in which there is much pride. Lengthy investigations into the nation's larger universities revealed that Northern possesses a comparable amount of material. Within Northern's library, there are 95%-99% of the works contained in two universities listed among those most highly noted in adult-continuing education programs. The acquisition of literature is not, and will never be, totally complete; as the field grows, so does the amount of material. Supplying Northern's library will be a continual process in an attempt to serve the Adult-Continuing Education field.

Hopefully, this bibliography will be used by those studying and practicing in the area of adult education. Perhaps, in some way, it will encourage the pursuit of knowledge and professionalism within this educational field. In turn, it may be a useful tool used for the remediation of the ills of society.

As this bibliography is for the purposes of those in the field, any remarks, recommendations or questions are welcome. A page at the end of the bibliography is provided for use in recording and submitting recommendations.

A special note of appreciation is due my former secretary, Robin Bosworth, for the many hours of research, organization, and typing which she had given in the preparation of this bibliography. Further gratitude is expressed to Vera Mitrovich and Linda Martinez, graduate assistants, and to all others who have assisted in this project.

The editor and compiler is equally indebted to Keith Lape, Clark Esarey and Wayne Giles of the O.S.P.I., Continuing Education Division, for funding the project and providing valuable sources of inspiration. Without their help and cooperation this project could not have been completed and made available to the practitioners of adult education.

WHAT IS ERIC?

- a national information system
- a source for obtaining documents on education
- a network of decentralized information centers

WHAT DOES ERIC DO?

- collects, stores, and disseminates information on education
- furnishes copies of educational documents at nominal cost
- prepares bibliographies and research reviews on critical topics in education
- coordinates the efforts of decentralized information centers throughout the country.

WHO CAN USE ERIC? HOW?

1) school administrators
   - to identify new and significant educational developments
   - to apply new management tools and practices to the local situation
   - to base budget estimates on the latest research data

2) teachers
   - to obtain the latest information on preservice and inservice training
   - to learn about new classroom techniques and materials
   - to discover "how-to-do-it" projects for personal and professional development

3) researchers
   - to keep up to date on research in their field of interest
   - to avoid duplication of research efforts
   - to obtain full-text documents on research

4) information specialists
   - to compile bibliographies on specific educational topics
   - to search ERIC publications for answers to inquiries
   - to locate and order documents for local information centers

5) professional organizations
   - to assist members in keeping abreast of research in a specific area of education
   - to inform members of significant developments or documents in peripheral or related areas of education
   - to keep members up to date on information systems

6) graduate and undergraduate students
   - to gain access to the latest information for preparation of term papers, theses and dissertations
   - to obtain information on career development in education
   - to build a personalized, low-cost library on education

WHERE IS ERIC LOCATED?

ERIC is located in Reference Room North of the Swen Parson Library.
